- Behaviour such as swearing, racquet throwing etc. may result in a warning or withdrawal from the lesson. Bullying in particular will not be tolerated. Parents will be informed should their child be involved in any incident involving disciplinary action, and individuals may not be allowed to continue with their coaching should their behaviour continue to adversely affect the group.
- Once a coaching group has been booked and paid for, this cannot be refunded except in exceptional circumstances, and only at the discretion of the Coaching team. Any refund may be subject to an administration fee.
- If there are insufficient enrolments at the start of a given course for a scheduled group lesson to be viable, we may cancel that group for the term. Weather

- It is our philosophy to try and run coaching sessions wherever possible and therefore we generally ask that participants attend the start of their session regardless of the weather. Coaching will only be cancelled in advance if the appropriate forecasting tools (e.g. MET Office Rainfall Radar) indicate with certainty that the session would be unsafe to run. If it is not predictable with certainty, the decision on whether to cancel the lessons will be made on the courts immediately prior to the lesson start time. Cancellation of one group lesson does not necessarily mean that other lessons will be cancelled that day. If you choose not to attend on doubtful days then you risk missing the class if it takes place.
- If coaching sessions are cancelled due to adverse weather conditions, these will be credited back the following half-term or additional sessions added, however, we cannot refund the money if the participant stops attending coaching groups.
- For private lessons, please contact your coach to find out if your lesson will go ahead.
